What Magic Word?
A Fighting Widow.
Must the Empire Fall?
The Church in Russia

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

MR. NORRIS, one of the most earnest, honest men in the senate, thanks President Hoover could, if he would, make prohibition an immediate success.

Nobody wants that more than Mr. Hoover wants it. He wants it so earnestly that he almost thinks prohibition is a success now.

Senator Norris says: "One sentence from the White House would end corruption."

It would have to be a powerful sentence, far surpassing in efficacy the old word "abracadabra."

In Nebraska, Mr. Norris' own state, last Saturday, young men, determined to have alcohol, drank an anti-freeze mixture. Five died, several are dangerously ill.

What sentence from the White House would have prevented that?

It is not fair to the president to say that he is not with all his heart for prohibition.

But no word of his, backed by the entire army and navy, which he commands, plus all the resources of the national treasury, could keep men from drinking if they were determined to drink.

That has been proved in history a hundred times.

MEN who think women should fight, if they want to vote, would appoint a lady called "the widow Ching" in China.

She leads a most dangerous, desperate gang of bandits, steals everything that can be carried, cuts the throats of all that resist, and persuades her followers that she is bullet proof. Many leaders have advanced that theory, until some bullet spoiled it.

The fighting widow, only 30, called marshal, has been offered a high command in the regular army if she would reform and cut threats according to law. She likes her job and has been imitated by other Chinese women.

I do not think there is anything that women cannot do if they put their minds to it, of course excepting the production of the very highest works of genius.

Nature will not let them do those things. They may concentrate on the production of first-class children.

Doubtless when the world is fully populated, and each woman limited to two children, women will do all that men do, and better.

NORMAN ANGELL, British member of parliament, prophesies the end of Britain's empire. But his reasons are not convincing.

He says acts of parliament have no force in Britain's dominions, and the British government has no real authority in them.

What of it? Among civilized men, the word of one has no authority in the family of another. That does not keep them from sticking together in emergencies.

Ask a Canadian, Australian or South African at what price he would advocate selling his dominion to the United States. That will tell you how British he is.

If Britain's empire did collapse it would be a sad day for hundreds of millions among so-called inferior races, thus called because they ARE inferior.

Under British rule India's population has risen from 200,000,000 to 300,000,000. Let Britain withdraw from India, by compulsion or otherwise, and you would see the British-created 100,000,000 melt away.

Famine and disease would do their old work. The bonfires of "suttee" would be blazing, young widows burning alive beside their old husbands' corpses in the good old way.

And savages Afghans would start in the work that Britain prevents and carry out their promise to "kill one-half the Hindus and make the rest slaves."

DR. COUNTS of teachers' college, Columbia university, warns religious heads protesting against Russian suppression of churches that their protests make matters worse.

He reminds protesting church dignitaries that the Russian church was worse than the Czar's government and the noble land owners in keeping peasants in ignorance and poverty.

"The church," says Dr. Counts, "was one of the most effective means by which the ruling classes maintained themselves in power."

Russia's peasants are religious and intensely superstitious, but they know that their church would go back to nobles and monastries and lands that Lenin gave them.

They do not want that.

THE Prince of Wales, hunting in India, killed an elephant, among other animals. The elephant, most intelligent of animals, fast becoming extinct in a wild state, is gentle, and no one, if not attacked. Killing such a huge creature, which is like destroying a barn, must be unpleasant. However, it is necessary for a "true sportsman" royalty especially, to include the killing of elephants, lions and tigers in life's record, and no elephant could not have lived over 70 or a hundred years more, anyhow.

5 CARS PLUNGE INTO DITCH AS AUTO IS HIT

Vehicle Hurled Into Path of Approaching Freight After Being Struck

DARKNESS ADDS HORROR

Rescue Work at Kenosha, Wis., Accident Done by Automobile Light

KENOSHA, Wis., Feb. 24 — (AP)—Eleven persons were killed and at least 100 were injured when a Chicago-bound passenger train of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee Electric railroad struck an automobile at a grade crossing just north of Kenosha late last night and was derailed.

The automobile was hurled directly into the path of a north-bound freight train, as the five cars of the passenger train left the track and piled into an eight-foot ditch.

The first car of the passenger train, which was travelling nearly 60 miles an hour, buried its nose in the soft mud of the ditch. The car behind piled into it. The three rear cars also went into the ditch but their passengers were more fortunate than those in the two forward cars.

The Dead

Frank Buday, Milwaukee, driver of the automobile.
Norman E. Shinners, Milwaukee, a passenger in the automobile.
James B. Poteous, Racine, Wis.
E. F. Reibe, Milwaukee.
George Brofka, Chicago.
James Fitzgerald, Manistique, Mich.
J. B. Goggin, Chicago.
Miss Betty Shenn, Chicago.
Miss Evelyn Metzger, Chicago.
Two unidentified women, one a negro.

There were 50 men, women and children under treatment at two Kenosha hospitals early today. Their injuries included broken arms, legs and ribs, skull fractures, internal injuries and bruises. Ten were pronounced in critical condition.

At least 50 other passengers were treated at the hospitals and then released.

Line Noted for Safety

It was the first time in 10 years that a passenger on the North Shore line had met death in an accident, the company said. The line has been awarded national recognition both for speed and safety in recent years.

The Buday automobile was traveling north when the passenger train bore down along the straightaway stretch. The train struck the car squarely, just as the 10-car freight train was approaching from the south. The machine was momentarily wedged between the two trains, before the passenger train left the rails. Several freight cars were derailed; but they remained upright.

First reports that the freight caught fire were incorrect. Actually the horror of the scene was the greater because of the darkness, the scores of injured frantically crying for help and fumbling their way out of the debris.

Passing automobiles were first to give aid. The injured were placed in the machines and taken to the Kenosha and St. Catherine's hospitals.

Several of the dead were buried in

PROBE OF POISONING OF 300 IS LAUNCHED

Some of Diners at San Francisco Banquet in Serious Condition

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 24—(AP)—Poisoned by food served at a Salvation Army banquet here, nearly 300 persons, most of them children, were recovering with few exceptions today as authorities began a threefold investigation to determine the cause of the near tragedy.

While there were no deaths reported, at least a dozen sufferers were still in a serious condition at the San Francisco hospital. Among them was Col. A. W. Crawford, second in command of the Golden Gate division of the Salvation Army and father of Rheba Crawford, former Salvation Army "Angel of Broadway."

City health officers began an analysis of food served at the banquet in an effort to determine the nature of the poisoning. Emergency hospital

HOTEL OWNER DIES

CHICAGO, Feb. 24—(AP)—Eugene Byheid, sportsman, hotel owner and one of the few rightly to be known as a "man-about-town," died early today, from injuries suffered last Tuesday, in a fall from his polo pony. He was 46 years old, unmarried, and vice president of the Hotel Sherman Co.

ALLEGED POISONER

Although arrested on the specific charge of being a robbery-suspect, Baker is said to have admitted criminal record that includes eight poison slayings in various parts of the world. He is a former resident of Warren, O.

HANNAH'S LIES HALT SOLUTION

Famous "Confessor" Now Declares That Conald Was Child's Slayer

ALSO ABSOLVES ARNOLD

Authorities Demand That Hannah Find Body of Melvin Horst

WOOSTER, Feb. 24—(AP)—The shifting blanket of lies woven by Charles Hannah still hung today between authorities and a solution to the disappearance of Melvin Horst, four, from Orrville, 14 months ago.

Hannah, who only two days ago solemnly swore all of his "confessions" to killing the child were lies, was retrenched today in one of his former stories—that Earl Conald, former railroad brakeman also being held, slew Melvin.

Two weeks ago, Hannah told the same story, but later denied it and asserted he himself was the actual slayer while Conald disposed of the body. Next Hannah said two Akron men drove away with the body only to admit it was another untruth.

His present attempt to shift Conald back into the center of the investigation came during 32 hours of questioning, lasting until early today. He was put through this barrage after his statement to the Rev. Robert S. Tuck of the Wooster Christian church that he had nothing whatsoever to do with Melvin's disappearance.

Last night he said Conald killed Melvin Dec. 27, 1928, the day of his disappearance, while the two men were in Conald's garage drinking. He repudiated his naming of Arthur Arnold as a co-conspirator. Arnold, with his father, Elias, were convicted of child stealing on the strength of a story by Hannah's 10-year-old son, Junior, but later was acquitted.

Authorities were determined not to place any stock in Hannah's stories until he tells one substantiated by finding of the body. He still is looked to, however, to clear up the mystery.

NILES, Mich., Feb. 24—(INS)—Chopped into small pieces, the body of Mrs. Rozella Plovie, 42, was found here today in a shallow grave in the back yard of her home—a grave just a few feet from where Phillip Plovie, her husband, killed himself yesterday rather than face questioners.

BETTER FIRE RATING PROPOSED FOR CITY

Notified Four More Firemen Will Give Marion Best Insurance Rank in Its History

Marion faces an opportunity of giving itself the best fire insurance rating in the city's history.

This can be accomplished by adding four men to the fire department in accordance with requirements of the Ohio inspection bureau, which has charge of the work of classifying all Ohio cities for insurance.

Addition of the four firemen will mean an increased expense for the city of $6,720 for the first year that the improved classification is effective but during the same year will result in an estimated saving of approximately $18,000 in insurance premiums on local, commercial and industrial property, which pays approximately 75 per cent of the city's annual fire insurance premiums, according to estimates.

Should the city arrange to comply with this requirement, the improved classification would be in effect for a period of at least five years and during that time benefits in the shape of insurance savings will naturally increase in proportion to the city's building expansion.

Outlined in Letter

This situation became known today in a letter received by Fire Chief T. J. McFarland from T. B. Sollars, of Columbus, manager of the Ohio Inspection Bureau, in which information recently conveyed to city officials is summarized along with recommendations as to what should be done to move Marion into the lower rate class.

On its face the proposition appears to be one which could be easily handled by the city but inquiry at the city hall today disclosed that in reality it creates a problem of a puzzling nature.

In order that the improved rating may be obtained, the four firemen must be placed on duty within the next few months, probably not later than July 1. With the city's tax rate fixed for this year, and with all available funds definitely appropriated for needs which apparently cannot be altered, there is apparently no way to provide funds for paying the additional firemen for the remainder of 1930.

Working on Problem

Mayor L. Don Jones, Safety Director Sonnenstine and the finance committee of city council have entered upon the task of seeking a solution to the problem. They have agreed that every possible effort should be made to take advantage of this opportunity to better the community's insurance rating, not only because of the financial benefits to be derived, but to enhance Marion's prestige as a business and industrial center.

Municipalities are divided into 10 classifications for fire insurance rating by regulations of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, in connection with which the Ohio Inspection bureau operates. Marion has been in the fifth class since 1921, when the last general inspection was made here.

Now, according to the letter from the inspection bureau, the city is only slightly short of requirements of the fourth class, and the small span can be bridged by adding the four firemen.

Action must be taken in the near future. The letter states that a large crew of men employed by the inspection bureau is now at work in Mansfield and will probably be ready to move into Marion early in March. They will make a complete survey of the city and its fire protection facilities, the results of which will form the basis of the city's classification for at least the next five years. Their

IMMEDIATE HEARING GRANTED SNOOK PLEA

U. S. Supreme Court To Decide on Review of Ohio Case

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—(INS)—Fighting doggedly to save their client from a trip to the electric chair in the Ohio State prison next Friday, attorneys for Dr. James H. Snook, confessed slayer of Theora Hix, will file with the supreme court today a petition for a writ of certiorari. If denied, it means that the attorneys for the college professor will have to turn to the state of Ohio to save their client from execution.

Sitting in chambers just before noon, the court decided to permit Snook's attorneys, E. O. Ricketts and Arthur M. Spiegel, to file the petition, and indicated that a decision would be made by the full court before tomorrow night.

This was a somewhat unusual procedure, as customarily after application is made to file a writ, the other side is given 20 days to file objections to the court's considering it. In this case, however, John J. Chester, Jr., prosecutor of Snook, consented to the filings, presumably in order to speed up final disposition of the federal end of the case.

Snook's attorneys resorted to the writ after unsuccessfully appealing to Associate Justice McReynolds for a stay of execution. Justice McReynolds rendered no definite decision on the request, but indicated he was not favorably disposed toward it. The decision of the court in chambers to permit the filing of the application followed after a conference with all the attorneys.

Ceremony Is Short and Simple; Held in Historic Old Chambers of Court

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—(AP)—Charles Evans Hughes became chief justice of the United States today, taking the oath of office at 12:09 p. m.

Only a short and soberly simple ceremony in the historic old chambers of the highest court attended his induction into office.

He took the preliminary oath of allegiance to the Constitution in the court robing room shortly before noon, with only members of the court present.

Then, as the black-robed justices assembled on the bench for the beginning of a new term, he stood at the clerk's desk in a crowded court chamber and recited the pledge to sit in judgment impartially, and "do equal right to the poor and the rich."

That ended the ceremony. The court proceeded with the day's work.

Watchman Run Down by Car He Attempts To Flag Down at Crossing

CONDITION IS CRITICAL

Five Young People Injured As Machine Is Ditched West of City

A car which he attempted to flag down as a train approached, today had landed Van B. Whittaker, 585 West Columbia st., crossing watchman for the Big Four railroad, in City hospital with serious injuries. The accident occurred at the crossing of the Big Four tracks on North State st. at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Whittaker's attending physician said at noon today that the injured man's condition is critical. Although he has a fractured nose and gashes and bruises about the head, his most serious injuries are internal. There is a possibility that the injuries may prove fatal, the physician said.

Five other persons were in City hospital last night following accidents that marred one of the most pleasant Sundays in months. None was seriously injured. Numerous accidents were reported over the state as the result of the first heavy spring traffic.

Hastening to her home at 280 Bellevue av. to procure a forgotten wrap for her son Don, 10, who was to leave shortly for Boy Scout Camp John A. Owens, driving a Chevrolet coach, Mrs. Garnet Roberts failed to see the aged watchman as he stepped into the middle of the street to halt traffic at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. She said that she knew a east-bound train was approaching.

Car Hits Sign

The car she was driving struck the watchman's sign carried by Whittaker, after she had swerved the car sharply to avoid running him down. The sign struck Whittaker's temple, seriously injuring him about the head and cutting one hand.

Driving north on Main st., Mrs. Roberts perceived she could not beat the slow moving eastbound train to that crossing, and swerved over on Mill st. to cross at the North State st. crossing. Mrs. Roberts is said by witnesses to have cut across the corner, striking Whittaker's sign, and narrowly avoiding striking him.

He was taken to the hospital in the C. E. Curtis Co. ambulance.

A Ford car owned by Merle Burkepile, Ballentine av., which was parked on the north side of the tracks, was slightly damaged by Mrs. Roberts car after the accident. It was taken to the Jennings Brake Service on North State st. for repairs.

Young People in Accident

Six young people, filled with the joy of a beautiful spring day, participated in an accident yesterday afternoon about 5:15 o'clock on the Harding Highway, west of the city, that put five of them in the hospital last night. The sixth member of the party, a boy, was not injured.

According to the story of the uninjured boy, the six young people, Marguerite Rice, East Center st., Emily Muntzinger, East Center st., Alice

CUT EXPENSES, HOOVER PLEADS

Tells Leaders Treasury Faces Deficit Unless Purse Strings Are Tightened

MEET AT BREAKFAST

Drain by Farm Board and Public Buildings Program Described

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—(INS)—President Hoover assembled the Republican leaders in congress about the White House breakfast table this morning and bluntly told them that the limit has been reached on congressional expenditures—that unless congress draws the purse strings tight for the balance of this session a treasury deficit is in sight which can only spell increased taxes later on.

He advised the legislators that the budget must be adhered to within $50,000,000 if an awkward financial situation is to be averted.

Support Economy Plea

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Assistant Secretary Ogden Mills and Budget Director J. C. Roop, also were present and supported the president's economy plea with facts and figures on the government's present and prospective revenues. The revenues are not going to permit any appropriating by congress outside the budget figures, they warned.

The drain on federal finances occasioned by the farm board appropriations, the public buildings program, and lesser governmental projects, coupled with the $160,000,000 tax reduction granted in December and the prospect of reduced revenues from income taxes in March, due to the 1929 stock slump, have combined to make the government's fiscal situation anything but rosy, the legislators were informed.

Income Taxes Figure

If congress will refrain from any extraordinary appropriations, other than those already approved and those contained in the house supply bills it is probable that the treasury can escape a deficit, but not otherwise.

Treasury officials informed the legislators that if the budget were strictly adhered to, the prospective treasury surpluses for 1930 and 1931 are $145,000,000 and $42,000,000, respectively. These figures, however, do not take into account any reduction in income tax receipts that may be caused by the stock market crash. The treasury's figure on income tax receipts for 1930 at $2,500,000,000, and for 1931 at $2,380,000,000.

CASH AND SILK DRESSES LOST BY JENNER CO.

Raid in Uptown Business Place Largest of Series in Two-Night Crime Wave

SAFE BLOWN OPEN

Two Smaller Burglaries, Four Auto Thefts, Also in List

Marion this morning was recovering from a miniature crime wave which swept this city Saturday and Sunday nights, leaving a shortage of several thousand dollars in loot and stolen automobiles.

A resume of burglaries and thefts listed in the police report this morning are as follows:

Burglars Sunday night or this morning looted the Jenner Co. store, South Main st., of $1,500 in silk dresses and $600 in money. They escaped, leaving no clues.

Two youthful alleged burglars were arrested by police early Sunday morning. Loot valued at nearly $100, taken from a Bennett st. barber shop, was recovered.

An Oak st. home was burglarized of a gun and a watch.

Four automobiles were stolen, one of which was recovered. Another car was looted and a woman's pocketbook stolen. One bicycle was stolen.

Blow Jenner Safe

Expert burglars successfully looted the Jenner Co. store last night or this morning. The safe was "blown" and $500 in money taken from it. The cream of a stock of valuable silk dresses was hastily packed in suitcases and carried away. The dresses were valued at $1,500, John Jenner, head of the Jenner Co., said today, and were not insured. The loss of money from the safe was covered by insurance.

The burglars "jimmied" the front door to gain entrance to the store. Then they so bared the lock on the door that it appeared to be untouched. This misled nightwatchmen who probably tried the door after the burglary. The loss was not discovered until this morning.

The burglars evidently left the store through a side opening on West Church st. The only possible clues left are fingerprints on the safe, which police copied this morning.

There is a possibility that the store was entered Saturday night after closing time, as no one went to the store Sunday.

Employes were given their salaries Saturday night at closing time, otherwise the payroll would have been a part of the loot.

Two Bound Over

Ora E. Searle, 25, of 775 Bennett st., and Theodore Hocker, 21, of 771 Bennett st., are being held to the grand jury under $2,000 bond each on charges of burglary, following their arrest Sunday morning by police.

A woman whose name is being withheld, saw the two young men at 1 o'clock Sunday morning enter a barber shop owned by Homer Bowen, directly across the street from their homes, ransack the store, and return to the home of Swain with loot, she told police. Police went to the Swain's home, recovered the loot.

School Bell Tolls Start of Thrilling Experience for 15 Young Hill-Billies

BY GEORGE E. DERNO
Marion Star Staff Writer

CRIGLERSVILLE, Va., Feb. 24—(INS)—A school bell rang in Dark Hollow today for the first time in 12 years.

Its peal brought up the mountainside a picturesque little group of young hill-billies, aged from 6 to 20. In all, about 15.

They were going to learn to read and write.

Something the child of no city would say ought to be regarded as a painful duty. But not these young mountaineers. Rather they were embarking on the most thrilling experience of their brief lives—these children to most of whom Criglersville, the roadside settlement at the base of the mountain, is a teeming metropolis to be visited only on rare occasions.

Faces scrubbed and hair slicked and wearing their Sunday best, the children of Dark Hollow trudged up the muddy road to the mountain school made possible by the interest of President Hoover. As schools go, it is just a small country school. It cost only $1,200. To the young matriculators, however, it was a mansion of magic and mystery. Not since 1918 has the mountain boasted a school and that one most assuredly did not boast of electric lights, of radio and insulation or school equipment.

MOTORISTS WARNED AGAINST DELAWARE

Bulletin Sent Out by State Association Tells of Alleged "Trap"

The justice court of George E. Caylor, in Delaware, has been accused of complicity in a "trap" for motorists in a news sheet recently released by the Ohio State Automobile association, which is taking action through investigation to break up a practice said to exist in Delaware county which victimizes many motorists.

The speed traffic law of the state which puts it up against to pass a halted school bus is being used by the officers to promote their "trap," according to the auto association report.

The report of the investigation for the state association shows that from Jan. 14 to Feb. 6, 27 arrests were made, but that during the time between Jan. 15 and Jan. 22 while the investigation was under way, the activity of the authorities was suspended and no arrests were made.

Complaint has been made that the officers are said to stand and ride in a car that has been riding close behind the school bus, partially or completely obstructing the view of motorists in the rear of the car. When the motorist pulls out to pass the bus when it stops to load or unload passengers, the driver is arrested.

In the 27 cases mentioned above, the penalties assessed ranged from the costs in the case, ranging from $7.05 to $14.45, to fines and costs upward of $20. In a number of cases the fine which naturally would go to the state was suspended, but the costs from which the justice of the peace and constable derived their compensation invariably stood, according to report of the investigation.

GERM TESTER

Mrs. Mae G. Breardon is suing the estate of the late Elden C. De Witt, multi-millionaire manufacturer of patent medicines and ginger ale, for $500,000. Years ago, Mrs. Breardon claims, Elden asked her to submit to an inoculation of a disease into her veins in order that he might test the specific he had developed for the cure of the illness. After being inoculated Mrs. Breardon learned, too late, of the virulent nature of the disease when Elden's "specific" failed to cure her.

MOTHERS' HOPES

What Chance Have They if Real Music Must Be Sacrificed to Machine-made Sound?

Today change—speed—unrest work to thwart her longing for contentment. . . . The ruthless spirit of the Machine Age threatens to crowd out all humanizing culture. . . . Men and women whirl heedlessly through life to the clatter of the eternal machine. . . . Now, the machine has entered the realm of the musical art. Is this the Song of Progress? No! Machine-made music can never provide a substitute for the mellowing cultural influence of Real Music. Those concerned for the future of the race will resent the strangling of the art of music by a mechanical substitute in the theatre. Yet the art will be strangled if this false economy is not halted by public demand. . . . Here is opportunity for Mother and all who share her hopes to cast a vote for preservation of Living Music. SIGN THE COUPON. Then mail it.

Fiorito's Orchestra Booked for Debut Over Radio With Stars in Solo Roles

20-Piece Symphonic Dance Band To Be Heard on WJZ Network

FIORITO'S orchestra, a 20-piece symphonic dance band, under the personal direction of Ted Fiorito, nationally famous song writer and maestro, will make its debut to a nationwide radio audience from 8 to 8:30 o'clock Monday night over the WJZ network. The orchestra will be assisted by Botting and Platt, noted piano twins, and Tom, Dick and Harry, vocal trio.

Ted Fiorito has won ever increasing popularity throughout the country for the excellence of his musical compositions and is one of the most outstanding orchestra leaders. As a composer of popular songs he has to his credit, "Dreamer of Dreams," "I'm Sorry Sally," "King for a Day" and "Laugh, Clown, Laugh."

Botting and Platt, pianists, who will be contrasted with the orchestra, have won wide reputation among radio listeners for their unusual and masterful work on the two pianos. Botting, although totally blind, holds the degree of master of music and is a composer and arranger as well as a talented pianist. Platt is also a fine musician with a perfect sense of harmony and rhythm, working in masterful fashion with his partner.

The new program will offer each week a variety of music designed to appeal to the most cosmopolitan radio ears. The selections will range from Fiorito's famous musical interpretations of modern hits through the range of light opera and classic ballmasters.

7 Hours in Bed and Not 7 Minutes' Sleep!

The Toll Acidity Takes

When you go to bed dog-tired and still can't sleep and you rise in the morning more tired than when you went to bed, it's a sign you're "acid." Excess acid, formed in the stomach as a result of our unnatural eating habits, causes acid-indigestion with gas, sourness and burning and sets up poisonous putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal which saps our strength and vitality and so takes our nerves that we can't sleep at night or work efficiently during the day.

Magnesia Oxoids, declared in Germany by a famous, 100-year-old pharmaceutical house, correct acidity in the right way! Upon contact with the acid in the stomach, Magnesia Oxoids generate nascent, or active oxygen. The "live" oxygen stimulates the alkaline gastric mucus, checks putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal and stimulates the activities of the intestinal walls which aids the natural movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary to the true correction of acidity.

5-Day Acidity Test

To ascertain just how "acid" you are, make this test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxoids from Bradley's Drug Store or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal for a few days and see how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep and how much more energy you have. If you don't get more than amazing results, return the balance of the Oxoids to the druggist and he will refund the purchase price promptly and in full.—Adv.

the debris of the first car and it was necessary to burn through the steel couch to remove the bodies.

One survivor, Louis Novelski, Chicago, who was riding in the third car, said: "There was a dreadful crash. People were thrown from their seats. Some started to scream and others groaned. Our car was turned over on its side and we were able to get out of the door."

Mrs. Albert Sawyer, another passenger in the third car, said that the woman seated in front of her fainted and was carried out by several men. "Passengers in the other cars tell me they saw people's feet flying about on the floor of the car" she said. She was one of the few of the 225 passengers to escape without injury.

The train was carrying an unusually heavy load due to the fact that many Christmans were returning from the double holiday in Wisconsin.

Two highways paralled the train's road right of way, and within a few minutes following the wreck the light of scores of headlights were focused upon the wreckage.

C. W. Hall of Chicago, motorman of the passenger train, saved his life by jumping. He is in a hospital with both legs broken. The front of the car from which he jumped was demolished.

BETTER FIRE RATING PROPOSED FOR CITY

Notified 4 More Firemen Will Give Marion Best Insurance Rank in its History

Advance Information

In advance of this inspection the National Board of Underwriters and the Ohio Inspection Bureau have obtained information which has made it possible to let city officials know the approximate appropriate standing.

The National Board of Underwriters recently completed a methodical survey of the city's fire fighting facilities and a gradation of its classifications. A report of this investigation is expected to be made public soon.

Value of the most recent city and standing deficiencies in the fire department, and as well to emphasize to the forthcoming National Board of Fire Underwriters' report, a few undamaged portions of the fire department" the letter from the inspection bureau says, "and for at least particular partial suppression of this condition, they are suggesting the setting of a per square mile. However, since it seems unlikely that even the suggestions could be provided for in the immediate future, we feel that even the addition of four men to the department [illegible] and bring the grading [illegible] the line into fourth class, and we are willing to compromise to that extent if the city can give us definite assurance that these men will be added just as soon as the necessary arrangements for housing can be made, even though they do not actually go on duty for the next several months."

Reduction in rates as a result of the improved classification would apply only to commercial and industrial properties, including buildings and contents. According to the letter from the inspection bureau, the approximate reduction would be five per cent on brick buildings with comparatively few difficulties or contents, and a three per cent cut on the basis rates on frame buildings with less difficulties or contents.

Few Exceptions

Industrial and business plants equipped with automatic sprinklers would not be included. Present rates on these properties are at a minimum and so agreed because of the sprinkler protection, the letter states.

Residence fire insurance rates would not be lowered, according to the letter, because of the rules in Marion are now the minimum for this particular class and are the same as those effective in the larger cities such as Cleveland, Cincinnati and Columbus.

About a year ago Marion firemen requests received from a general cut made throughout state, the drop at that time being 30 per cent on homes equipped with chemical [illegible] and five cents on those with simple piping.

City officials now working on the proposition believe that reduction in rates will not be that the cut in insurance would benefit to the property owner, especially since the inspection bureau has found that fire losses [illegible] decrease.

It is estimated by those who are [illegible] and business interests [illegible] would receive the maximum cut per cent of the approximately 60 per cent of the city's taxes. According to the [illegible] rates from one of the major insurance companies [illegible] per $1,000 insurance. As a [illegible] approximate standard. As a [illegible] illustration, [illegible] Columbus, not the city's largest, pays $1.50 yearly for fire insurance.

Pay Large Share

During the year insurance companies in Marion paid out [illegible] losses, it is learned that of the total amount [illegible] companies [illegible] paid out [illegible] the property of those [illegible] to [illegible] paying [illegible] of the property [illegible] Marion [illegible] Marion [illegible] Marion

HORTON SMITH

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—(INS)—There is a new Hagen in professional golf today and it seems that he is better than the old because at least, he can beat Bobby Jones once in a while. The old Hagen, of course, has gone; he has faded so badly that he can't be seen now, even with a permit. But Horton Smith is just coming to the bloom of ripe maturity and on Saturday at Savannah he did something that even the old Hagen, with all of his wonderful cockiness and in spite of the titles he took manners, hasn't been able to do in the years that they have been matching for competitions he won an open tournament in which Jones was one of the starters.

The tournament in question was the Savannah open and it was won in the face of two great rounds of 66 and 67 by Jones, the first of which broke the course record and the second gives him a first round lead over Smith of four strokes. Only a champion can do that with Jones and that rather caps the climax.

Hagen might have done it when he was great and Jones, the kid golfer, was groping his way to the light. But not in this day when Jones is the greatest of them all and Hagen is almost a memory. This was no subnormal Jones that Smith beat at Savannah by a stroke, 278 to 279. It was a Jones who shaved 17 strokes from the par of the course for four rounds and still couldn't win.

It takes something better than just a good "country" golfer to beat that kind of shooting. It takes, as a matter of fact, the kind of man that professional golf hasn't known since Jones came forward in 1922 as a really serious menace to the pride and prestige of the gold performer—namely, a professional who may challenge the great Georgian's game on a year-to-year basis.

Hagen had been that kind of a golfer potentially, probably because of his fine victories in the British open. He couldn't quite, however, beat Jones. He was runner-up to him over there in 1926 and 1927. In fact, their respective records clearly show that, so far as medal competition is concerned, Hagen might have done well to seek a rematch on with old Doctor Freud himself. His previous record means nothing. He has and has an inferiority complex in relation to Jones.

In only one national open championship since Jones first won did Hagen finish ahead of Jones. This came at Oakmont in 1927 but it was hardly a distinction. It was practically one of the regulars of the tournament. Otherwise Jones has beaten him here and abroad at medal play until the thing has become almost a formula. Hagen's lately acquisition is not a very reassuring one.

They met at match play about four years ago for the honor and glory of the real estate subdivisions in Florida and Hagen won by a basketball score. This, however, was far from satisfactory because almost any of a dozen professionals might have "the same thing" Jones. Hagen to be a business man at the time was so badly underpuffed that he decided to get absolutely mowed down in the southern open against the pros the following year but his 5&4 six or seven and Hagen was a starter in that tournament and I believe he finished the following morning.

HOLY ANGELS BEAT ST. MARY'S, 16-15

Locals Close Successful Basketball Season on Floor at Sidney: To Continue Training for Tourney

A SUCCESSFUL basketball season came to a close Saturday night for St. Mary's High school cagers when the locals were defeated at Sidney by the Holy Angels, 16 to 15. It was the fourth defeat of the season suffered by the locals.

Marion will continue along its regular training routine pending word from Loyola university in Chicago concerning St. Mary's bid to participate in the national Catholic interscholastic basketball meet. The record of the local team is being considered by the Loyola tournament officials.

St. Mary's was nosed out of the season's concluding game in the last half. The score was close throughout and neither team held more than a one point lead any great length of time. At the half the locals were on the long end of an 8-to-7 score.

Casey played the stellar role in the defeat of the Marionites. He scored 10 points from five goals. Daniels counted two more field goals for the Holy Angels.

Gorsuch and Chuck Fye were high point collectors for St. Mary's. They scored two field goals and one free throw each. Kelly marked up two field goals.

A number of practice games for the next couple of weeks are being booked by the manager of the Saints. The lineups:

Ugliest Star of Films on Local Card

Bull Montana Will Face Clete Kauffman at Steam Shovel Gym

IF your wife has been casting insulting remarks about your map, take her to the wrestling match at the Steam Shovel gym tomorrow night. It is a 100-to-1 shot that the matter of your facial contours will never be brought up again.

The world's ugliest man will put in his appearance at the local ring against Clete Kauffman. He is Bull Montana, famed as a movie actor who gained some of his looks from a good many years in the wrestling game.

OF course the Bull is taking in a lot of territory when he claims to have the ugliest look of the month. But those who have met the actor are willing to accept his claims without dispute.

Montana and Kauffman headline the wrestling program Tuesday night. They will appear in the two-fall main go event. In the semi-final will be Billy Roscoe and Jack Gorman. They are two welterweights who will give the fans plenty of action. They are billed to go 30 minutes.

With a movie star as a leading attraction, the largest crowd of the season is expected to witness the event. The advance sale of ringside seats has been exceptionally heavy.

THREE FIVES REMAIN IN CONFERENCE RACE

Wisconsin, Purdue and Michigan Are Fighting for Championship

CHICAGO, Feb. 24—(INS) — A new order of things ruled in the Big Nine here today with only three teams, Purdue, Wisconsin and Michigan remaining in the race for the conference basketball championship.

It was a five-team race before Saturday night when Wisconsin unexpectedly fell before the Chicago attack and Indiana was defeated by Michigan, 21 to 18. Illinois met its third defeat of the year when the Illini met Northwestern; thus the team from Urbana was eliminated from championship hopes.

Purdue has yet to meet its peer and as a result the Boilermakers are far ahead of the hopeful Wisconsin and Michigan squads, both of which have been defeated twice thus far.

Purdue holds a clean record of six straight victories, and since neither Illinois, Indiana nor Wisconsin appear on Purdue's schedule, the race is practically conceded to the same university that took the Western conference football championship last fall.

Indications Point to Plenty of Vacant Seats as Fans Begin Arriving at Miami

Garden Will Be Surprised If Show Draws $400,000 Gate

MIAMI, Fla., 24—(INS)—Incoming specials were bringing night fans to Miami today but not in numbers large enough to evoke any wild jubilation on the part of the promoters of the "international" boxing carnival next Thursday night, featuring Phil Scott, of Great Britain, versus Jack Sharkey of the U. S. A.

The suspicion is growing that there will be plenty of vacant seats when the pair square off, even though their 15-round fracas has been billed as sort of a prelude to a battle for the heavyweight championship of the world. According to the ballyhoo, the winner will meet Max Schmeling of Germany for the crown vacated by Gene Tunney.

It still is too early to say the show will be a flop, but if it draws a $400,000 gate, as did the Sharkey-Stribling spectacle of a year ago, no one will be more surprised than the Madison Square Garden officials themselves. Outwardly they are optimistic, but it requires no great skill to discern that they are none too happy over the financial situation at the moment.

The truth is the American public does not seem to be unduly agitated over the bout. This fact is indicated not only by the light advance sale to date but also by the adherents asking four to one, and then not finding any big bankrolls to back their judgment. Only one big bet has been laid $5,000 to $3,000.

Nearly all the sports in town for the bout think Sharkey will "take" Scott in a business-like way. Many of them will be greatly surprised if Fainting Phil lasts six rounds. The lowdown is that Sharkey is going to tear the Englishman at the very outset on the theory that Scott cannot hit hard enough to cause any trouble.

On the other hand, those who fancy Scott say that if he gets by six rounds he will outpoint Sharkey and get the nod.

Paradoxically enough, British interest in the bout is intense, according to the English correspondents on the ground. They have been cabling upwards of 6,000 words a day to London and as the hour of the impending battle nears the wordage is increasing.

Scott and Sharkey both planned to conclude their daily training grind this afternoon. They will indulge in light roadwork Tuesday and Wednesday and will remain idle the day of the fight.

Sharkey seems to be in great physical condition. He has shown plenty of "class" in his final workouts. His hands are in fine shape although he has been training since Feb. 1. His mental poise is good. He weighted 205 pounds today and his trainer, Al Lacey, said he will tip the scales Thursday at around 197. He scaled 192 for Stribling a year ago.

Scott's weight is now 207½. He has taken off 20 pounds and is as lean as a grey hound. He, too, is in excellent condition and ready for the battle of his career. He boxed 10 rounds with five sparring partners yesterday, five rounds more than Sharkey boxed. Both plan to cut down on their work this afternoon.

Interest locally is almost as high in the semi-final bout between Victorio Campolo, giant South American, and Johnny Risko, the Cleveland rubber man, as in the main go. There is a strong feeling that the Campolo-Risko setto may "steal the show."

CAREY WILL NOT WITNESS FIGHT

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 24—(INS)—William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, will not see the Sharkey-Scott bout next Thursday night.

"I hate to miss it," Carey said today, "but I've got to get to South America on important railroad business. I'm going to catch a train for New York tonight, clean up a little business there that will require a day or two, and then get my boat."

The departure of Carey on the eve of the battle was somewhat of a surprise. He came here a few days and put some life in the fight ballyhoo which had been dying on its feet.

WESLEYAN CERTAIN OF TIE FOR CROWN

Cincinnati Upset by Ohio U; Other Conference Favorites Beaten

(By International News Service)

The favorites took one on the button, in basketball contests as evidenced by the results over the weekend.

Cincinnati's hope of dominating the Buckeye Association was shattered by the Ohio university cagers who took the Bearcats for a 41-to-35 ride. The best Cincinnati can hope for now is a tie with Ohio Wesleyan, which now leads the pack.

Illness Saturday aided the cause of the Wooster basketeers when four of their rivals for supremacy bit the dust.

Otterbein steam-rollered Marietta, 28 to 23, as its donation to the Wooster cause.

The Western Reserve quintet subdued a strong St. Xavier, 30 to 24.

Lyman, Kenyon center, went wild in the last five of minutes of play with Mt. Union. He exerted himself with six field goals. Needless to say that it spelled the downfall of Mt. Union, 34 to 31.

Case took one away from Baldwin-Wallace by a 31-to-29 score.

All that Wooster has to contend with now as rivals are Heidelberg, Muskingum and Akron, none of which should cause any great worry.

The coming week will see basketball taking a finale. The northwest and Buckeye conferences will make its exit for the season, while all except four of the remaining games in the Ohio conference will be disposed of.

Ohio Wesleyan is sure of a tie if not undisputed championship in the Buckeye association. It remains for Cincinnati to show what it will be.

Defiance in the Northwest conference is assured of no worse than a tie.

Following are the standings in the Buckeye and Northwestern conferences:

Buckeye	W	L	Pct	Northwestern	W	L	Pct
O. Wes.	6	2	.750	Defiance	6	1	.857
Cincin.	7	2	.714	Bluffton	4	2	.667
Ohio U.	4	4	.500	Bowl. G.	3	4	.428
Denison	2	5	.285	Toledo	2	5	.285
Miami	1	5	.166	Findlay	2	5	.285

Germany has 7,635 miles of inland waterways, including rivers, canals and minor lakes, about one-fifth of the mileage of its railroads, and is building additional canals.

Y QUINTET SWAMI ANN ARBOR, 43-2

Ramblers Gain Revenge for One of Three Games Lost Season; Lockwood Is Scoring Star

ONE of the three defeats given them this season was avenged Saturday night when the Marion Y-ladies Ramblers defeated the Ann Arbor, Mich., Y. quintet, 43 to 23, on the Y. M. C. A. floor here.

The contest was the final game on the local schedule. This week Marion settles down to a stiff practice grind for the state Y. M. C. A. amateur basketball tournament at Dayton March 8. Marion already holds the state Y. M. C. A. Young Men's club title.

Marion was given a real race in the second and third quarters after holding a lead of 15 to 6 at the end of the opening period. Three points separated the two quintets at the end of the next two periods. The locals opened up in the last quarter to run up a one-sided score.

Four Marion players figured in the high scoring. Lockwood was the brilliant figure in the battle getting 12 points. Cram and Roush each chalked up nine points while Gillis was good for eight.

W. Horning scored eight points for the Ann Arbor.

It was the eighteenth victory for Marion this season. The Y-ladies five has been beaten but three times.

The lineups:

Marion	G.	F.	Ann Arbor
Gillis	4	0	K. Herning
Fetter	1	0	Young
Roush	4	1	Rosenberg
Slack	0	0	Mason
Lockwood	5	2	W. Horning
Cram	4	1	Split

Week-End Industrial Report Shows Smaller Rate of Recovery

BY W. S. COUSINS
Marion Star Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—(INS)—A five-cent break in wheat prices; a new low of $1.60 a bale in cotton; declining commodity prices and reports of low rate of activity in important lines of trade and industry blocked the rally in the stock market today. After holding steadily throughout the most of the forenoon, the market reacted sharply under a deluge of selling orders for which the bears were held chiefly responsible.

A 3½-point drop in U. S Steel common to 179½ showed that the bears had sharpened their claws considerably since the market closed last Friday. American Can dropped off about 3½ points to 154¾ and speculative favorites like General Electric, Westinghouse, General Theater, American Tel. & Tel., Paramount, etc., declined from one to three points.

There were at the same time a number of outstanding strong spots, including Consolidated Gas, the coppers, selected rails and utilities. On heavy trading Consolidated Gas moved up to the highest price of the year, at 121½. Anaconda led the coppers, in a two point rally to 74 and Allegheny Corporation moved up on favorable news affecting the Van Sweringen group of railroads.

On the whole, the week-end industrial reports were discouraging as showing a smaller than expected rate of recovery in important sections of domestic trade. Call money was slightly firmer at 4 per cent. Trading fell off in volume to a 2,000,000-share rate for the first three hours.

Egg prices today had apparently ended their wild career, which dropped the Saturday quotations 12 cents below opening prices last week. Eggs and butter were both at same quotations as reported Saturday.

New cabbage is now shooting upward in price. Old cabbage is hard to get, and sells at eight and nine cents a pound. New cabbage, which must be shipped here from Florida, is virtually out of sight so far as quantity buyers are concerned. The price is 10 and 11 cents a pound.

Today's Close

CHICAGO, Feb. 24—(INS)—Grains closed sharply lower on the Chicago board of trade today with heavy liquidation by longs a feature. All deliveries of wheat dropped to consecutive new lows on the crop in the course of the session. Weakness in outside markets was the outstanding depressing factor. July corn also slumped to a new low on the crop.

At the close wheat was off 5¼ to 6¾c compared with last Friday's close. Corn was down 2¾ to 3c and oats ¾ to 1¼c. Rye finished 2½ to 3c lower.

Review of Last Week's Grain Market

CHICAGO, Feb. 24—Following the general trend of world values, local wheat prices dropped sharply to new lows the past week. Lack of foreign demand resulting in a downward trend at Liverpool and extreme weakness at Winnipeg were responsible for the bearish sentiment. Liquidation was extensive and the weakness of the market induced some short selling despite reluctance to take the bear side below farm board price levels.

Coarse grains suffered from the general wave of bearishness, but showed more resistance to pressure than wheat. Rye was irregular, but mainly followed wheat.

For the first time since before the turn of the year, the wheat market goes into a new week with the fundamentals of the situation promising to all appearances at least an even break for the bull side as against the bear side. While the trade by no means feels that the uncertainty of the situation is definitely past, it is felt that constructive price action to a moderate extent has an even chance against further breaks.

To begin with, this week is the calendar period to buy wheat, explainable by the fact that we are approaching the time when European buying logically increases. In the normal course of events southern hemisphere shipments pass their peak, uncertainty over the winter crop develops and visible supplies ordinarily decline substantially.

While uncertainty over the Canadian situation continues, the week just past indicates that regardless of the ultimate outcome of the Canadian pool's stand, demoralized liquidation of their holdings can scarcely be expected. In addition, a considerable part of the weakly held wheat went overboard and is assumed to be in stronger hands.

The recovery from the lows at the close of the week was largely based on the indications that prices had at last reached a low enough level to attract the foreign interest.

Several days of near summer weather over the winter wheat belt caused apprehension despite continued reports of excellent condition. A sudden return to severe temperature, it was said, might easily result in considerable damage.

Reluctant to press sales below the government supporting level, despite the bearishness of the recent situation, the local professional element appears to have been confining activities to short turns. It is thought by pit observers that appearance of constructive factors would find support from this quarter.

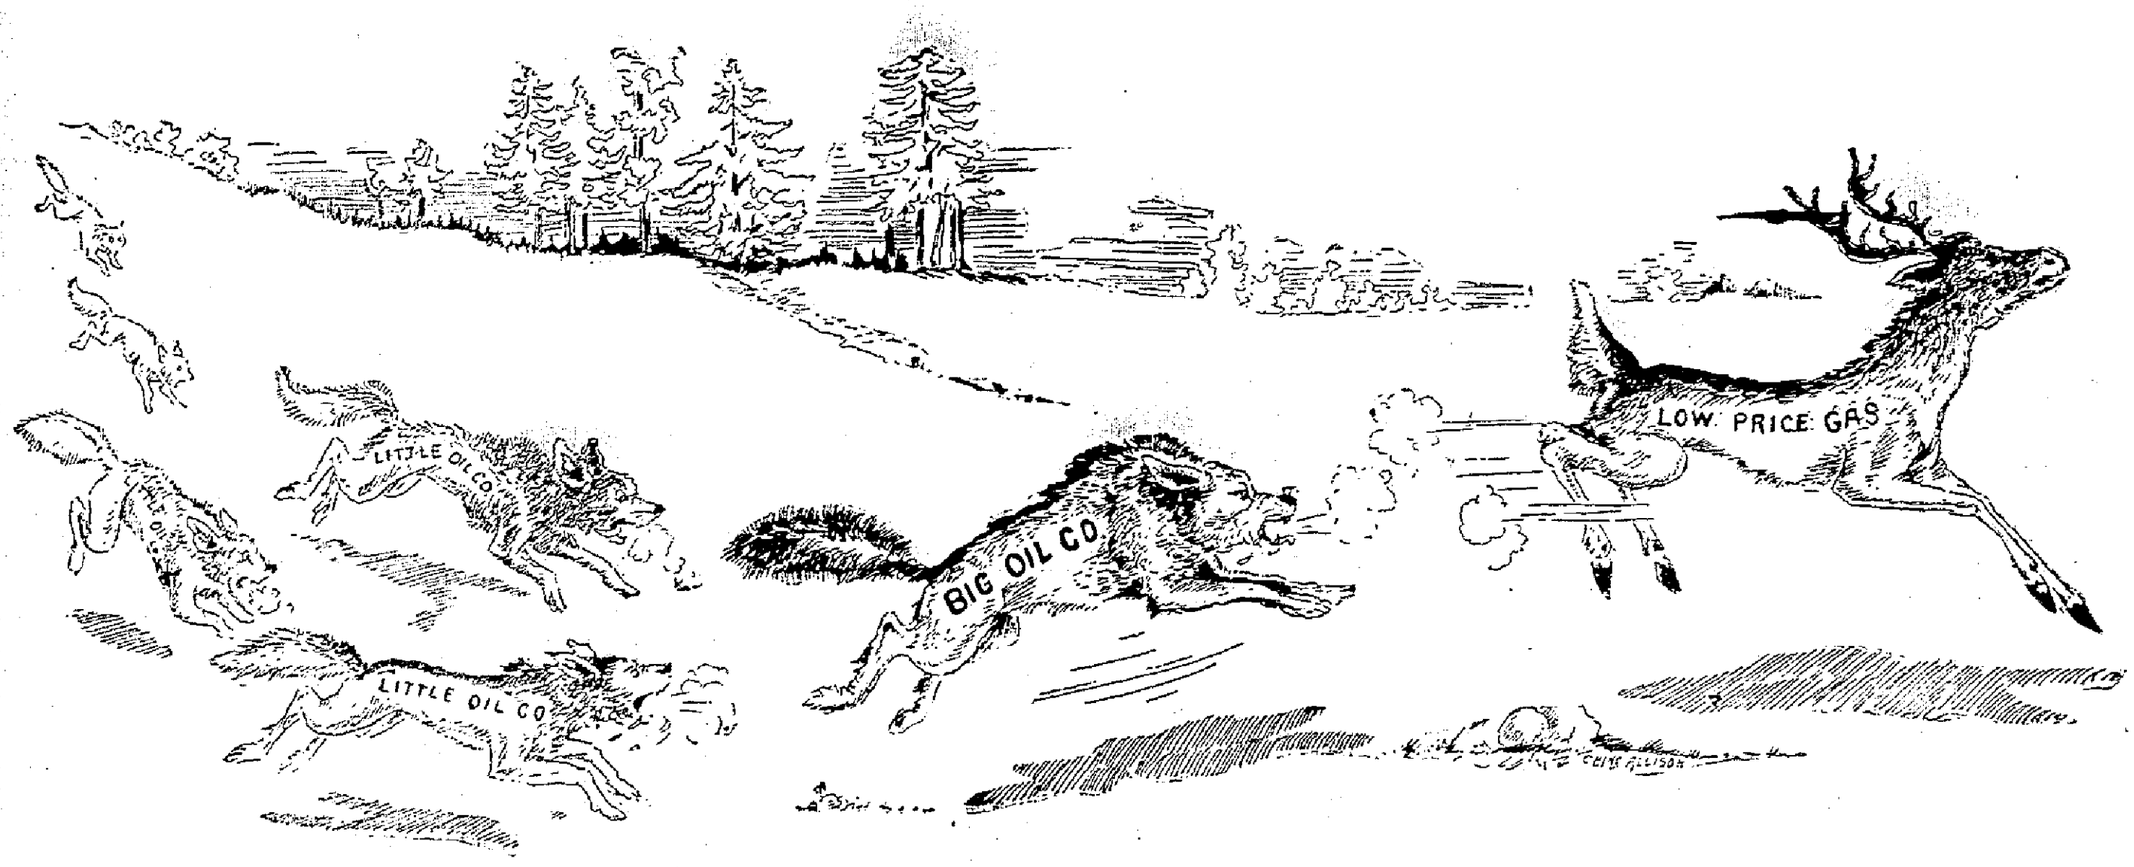
58-60 U. S. MOTOR GASOLINE 16c 58-60 U. S. MOTOR GASOLINE 16c 58-60 U. S. MOTOR GASOLINE 16c 58-60 U. S. MOTOR GASOLINE 16c



Predatory animals pursue their prey in packs. The law of the pack is to follow the leader.

In the great north woods there are countless numbers of deer to each predatory animal, yet the deer become victims of the predatory animals because of the law of the pack.

In the State of Ohio there are over a million motorists and a few oil companies, yet the motorists are at the mercy of the oil companies, because the oil companies follow the leader and observe the law of the pack.

Oil companies that do not follow the leader and observe the law of the pack, immediately become victims. Successful pack hunts in the past have taught them the effectiveness of the ceaseless hunt which is conducted in the form of a price war.

The pack is again pursuing the Low Price Filling Station, hoping to put this station out of business by a local price war and afterwards divide the patronage of all motorists among the members of the pack at greatly increased prices. Motorists who patronize the price war stations, which sell here at a ruinously low price and elsewhere at a high price to make up local losses, quite innocently assist the destruction of the local victim.

The Low Price Filling Station introduced a new method of merchandising gasoline directly from tank cars, avoiding the useless distributor, and do away with expensive upkeep of bulk stations, tank wagon service and numerous elaborate and extravagant oil stations that are such conspicuous evidence of the immense profits of past high prices.

The new method of selling direct from tank cars to motorists has alarmed the predatory pack because it interferes with a distributor's profit of several cents a gallon. The success of this sta-tion with its immense saving to motorists has caused this idea to spread, and to crush it, the law of the pack is being applied.

Should this method of distributing gasoline prove successful and stations of this kind be installed throughout Ohio, it would make it impossible for the major companies to operate profitably, because of their wasteful method of distributing gasoline.

Therefore, they use the old price war tactics in their efforts to destroy this form of competition.

This station has been very successful and we take this opportunity of thanking our thousands of loyal patrons.

However, we cannot continue to operate this station profitably except by doing a large volume of business.

Should motorists fall for this latest attempt on the part of the major companies, which are selling gasoline in Marion at 15c while charging 19c in other cities, thereby reducing our gallonage, we will be forced to advance our price or discontinue the station.

This is the object of these price wars.

Price wars of this kind are an insult to the intelligence of motorists, as their only object is to drive someone out of business so that these major companies can fix prices to their own satisfaction.

In addition to effecting a large savings on gasoline, this station is selling 100% Pure Pennsylvania lubricating oil at one-half the price generally charged by other stations.

To "Point-Up" Appetite Just Stimulate Bowels

Whenever the end of the day finds you out-of-sorts; food doesn't tempt you and your digest breath is bad; tongue coated, just chew a cascaret tablet before bedtime. Tomorrow you'll be a new person!

Cascarets are made from cascara, which authorities say actually strengthens bowel muscles. So, take these delightful tablets as often as you please; or give them freely to children. All drug stores sell Cascarets for a dime, and no dollar preparation could do better work. —Adv

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv)

Davey Will Not Run for Governor, He Announces

Kent Tree Man Says Business Will Not Permit Him Political Career

...LUMBUS, Feb. 24 (INS)—...nouncement by Martin L. Davey, ...presentative, former gubernatorial candidate and wealthy Kent ...surgeon, that he would not ...the race for the governorship ...year, and the possible effects ...ll have on the forthcoming ..., were being discussed with ...ty in Ohio political circles to-

...ultaneously with Davey's ...ation, came a statement from William G. Pickrel of Dayton, former lieutenant governor, that he is undecided as to whether he will throw his hat into the ring for the

MARTIN L. DAVEY
Democratic nomination for governor

With Davey definitely out of the gubernatorial picture and with the possibility of Pickrel withdrawing, George White, present Democratic candidate for governor, former congressman and selectone chairman of the national Democratic committee, is left a clear field.

2 Other Candidates

Two other likely candidates loom on the political horizon, however. One is former U. S. Judge John W. Peck, an ardent Democrat of Cincinnati, who is said to have solid backing of the Hamilton County Democratic committee. Ex-Congressman Matthew R. Denver of Wilmington also is said to be considering requests from friends and western Ohio political leaders that he throw his hat into the ring. Denver is a banker, farmer and manufacturer.

Davey declared that his business would not allow him to seek a political career at this time.

Davey, in his announcement of "I do not choose to run," predicted a Democratic victory during the coming state election.

Out of Senate Race

Prominent figures in politics also construed Davey's statement to mean that he would not enter the U. S. senatorial race, either. Though no Democratic candidates have signified their intentions of seeking the senatorial honors, the names of former Congressman John McSweeney of Wooster and Charles V. Truax, former state director of agriculture, are most often mentioned in connection with the race for senator. Former Gov. Vic Donahey will not enter the campaign, it is generally believed.

Mabel Normand, Tomboy of Screen, Is Claimed

Famous Comedienne Seemed To Have Been Trailed Through Life by Tragedy

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 24—(INS)—The body of Mabel Normand, the sad happy girl of the movies, lay here today awaiting plans for the funeral while Hollywood grieved at the loss of one of its best known members.

Death crept into the former screen commedienne's sanitarium ward in Monrovia yesterday and ended her long losing battle against the ravages of tuberculosis.

Once before, on Feb. 6, she succeeded in staving off death only by a blood transfusion.

One of the most enigmatic characters of screenland, Miss Normand's life seemed to have been trailed by tragedy. She was the last person to talk with William Desmond Taylor before he was slain in his Los Angeles apartment.

The shooting of Court S. Dines, wealthy Denver oil man, again brought her name into print. Dines was shot and seriously wounded by Miss Normand's chauffeur, it was brought out at the trial.

It was determined several days ago that she had only a few days to live. The heroine of the long-ago flicker films fought gamely on to the last, however, en courage alone.

Aged Man Found Near LaRue Is Returned to Soldiers' Home

John L. Watson, who was a mystery to Marion officials since he was found last Wednesday along the Big Four railroad tracks near LaRue, was taken to the Soldiers' home at Dayton yesterday in the Miess, Markert & Axe ambulance.

Dan Watson, of Youngstown, son of the man, notified the hospital late Friday night and said that his father had been visiting with him and had started back to the Peyton home. It is believed that he started to walk after getting off at Marion to change trains, and was knocked down by a passing train.

In the contest sponsored by the American Nature association to determine the country's favorite for the national flower, the wild rose was a runaway favorite, receiving 492,811 votes out of the total of 1,067,672 cast. How characteristic of us Americans that we should thus favor a simple, modest flower!

A hunter was shot up in Maine, last week, the white cloth with which he was wiping his glasses being mistaken by another man with a gun for the tail of a deer. We very gravely fear that the proximity of Maine to Canada is having its effect on so-called sportsmen up there.

It has been developed that the plane in which two passengers were burned to death, following a crash in the outskirts of Chicago last week, took off from a flying field which was declared dangerous and ordered closed to fliers, January 1, but which has been steadily used since by unlicensed pilots operating machines not officially examined. Yet people court death almost daily by taking off under such conditions!

Big Railroad Merger Approved.

The Interstate Commerce commission has approved a merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads, two of the great systems of the Northwest with an aggregate mileage of 15,000 which would be vested for ninety-nine years in the newly-formed Great Northern Pacific Railway company. But there is a fly in the ointment of the commission's action as the two roads are ordered to divest themselves of the stock of the Burlington line, which is owned jointly by them, over which they enter Chicago, the commission announcing that it would not at present decide the matter of giving, or denying, them a permanent entrance into the Chicago district.

Those who have traveled over the two roads and gone at times for hours without seeing more in the way of a community than an elevator, a water tank and a few houses about them can readily understand how a merger of the two roads would prove beneficial to them with an entrance into Chicago such as they now enjoy over the lines of the very considerable Burlington system, but it will be hard for one having had this experience to understand how such a merger could prove desirable should the Chicago connection they now enjoy, or one like it, be denied them. They would still enjoy the freight patronage which is now theirs during the grain and fruit seasons, possibly if not probably, but how they would be able to make both ends meet during the remainder of the year affords a problem. To survive they must get their share of the coast-to-coast business and how they would get that without a Chicago entrance with other roads to the Pacific coast having such an entrance, one of them another great system through the Northwest, is something in the way of a mystery.

The two roads in question have been endeavoring to effect a merger for many years, and would have merged during the Roosevelt administration had not the supreme court of the United States held that a holding company such as was proposed then, just such a holding company as the Interstate Commerce commission has approved, would constitute a merger, and that a merger was forbidden by law. It will be recalled that mergers at that time were just about as unpopular then as they are popular now.

We do not pretend to be familiar with the situation, but to one thus unversed it would seem the course of fairness for the commission to render its decision at this time regarding the matter of a permanent entrance into Chicago. For the roads to merge without such a decision would be a lot like buying a pig in a poke. Having gone as far as it has, it is no more than right that the Interstate Commerce commission should render its decision now regarding a Chicago entrance.

Why of the Contrast in Conditions.

A London story of last week carried the information that the number of jails in England had been cut in half since the beginning of the present century because of the marked decrease in crime; that twenty-seven had been abandoned since 1911 owing to lack of use for them and that commitment of a prisoner to a few of those remaining was equivalent to solitary confinement because the one thus committed had no fellow-prisoners to keep him from becoming lonely. A very similar situation to this in Britain exists in the Irish Free State, where the prison population has been reduced a half since the World war.

What a contrast to the conditions here in the United States where our prisons and jails are crowded far beyond their designed capacity and federal, state and municipal prison authorities are steadily facing the problem of how to house the offenders committed to them for safe-keeping! For several years our prison facilities have been far from equal to the demand, and the situation is steadily growing worse.

Yet there is no occasion for surprise over the contrasting conditions in Britain and here in our own land. In Britain crime is discouraged by the swift pursuit of criminals, speedy trials with equal justice to the accused and the state and sure and speedy punishment upon conviction. No legal folderol is permitted there, nor are vaporings of the reformers and sob-sisters, if they have any there, permitted to influence the course of justice.

Over here in America there is hardly any conceivable way in which crime may be encouraged that is not utilized. There is no need for going into the various ways. Newspaper readers are acquainted with them. Did the thing stop there, we would naturally have a prison population, even were the populations of the two countries practically the same, larger than that of England.

But the thing doesn't stop there. While England has for decades been rescinding laws which make criminals and studiously refraining from enacting laws which have that result, we here in America have of late been making laws which make criminals by the legal conversion of offenses and acts not essentially criminal into crimes. We have proceeded under the impression that we can improve on the laws of God in this respect and made crimes out of matters of which cognizance is not taken in the decalogue. Further than this, we of America, by legislation of national scope, having made crimes out of what have long been legally recognized as mere offenses, some of our states have gone a step further and enacted legislation which provides that, upon conviction of a fixed number of crimes, all of which may be crimes so transferred from offenses to crimes by law, one so convicted may be imprisoned for life, thereby adding to the permanency of our prison population.

Under such contrasting conditions as these, it is little wonder that England is tearing down her prisons, while we here in the United States find ours crowded to capacity, and are striving to the utmost to meet the call for prison facilities beyond those we have.

That Tired Feeling.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Good, red blood and plenty of it is essential to willing effort and easy performance of your daily tasks.

If you have too little red blood, or blood that is impoverished, it is hard to carry on. Life seems to be all up-hill work. You feel tired much of the time, you are cold, you have no endurance nor ambition.

The circulation of the blood is a wonderful thing. It is constantly circulating through every part of the body, through the lungs, through the heart, everywhere. About one-thirteenth of the bodyweight is supplied by the blood. If you weigh 160 pounds, you possess about thirteen pounds of blood. A boy of seventy-eight pounds has 6 pounds, or about 3 quarts of blood.

The blood contains red and white cells, or corpuscles. There are about 5,000,000 of red cells in a cubic millimeter of blood. It takes twenty-five millimeters to make an inch, so you can imagine that a cube, one millimeter to each side, represents a pretty small space. In one single drop are 150,000,000 red cells.

The redness in the cells comes from the "hemoglobin" or coloring matter in them. These cells carry oxygen from the lungs to every nook and cranny of the body. In some mysterious way the oxygen combines with the hemoglobin, and the amount of purifying oxygen a cell can carry depends on the quantity of hemoglobin in it.

You can see that when these red cells possess only half of the normal amount of hemoglobin needed, the body is going to get only half of the oxygen it needs. The blood is then pale and the human body suffers.

Undernourishment and impoverishment of the blood is the cause. Anemia, malaria, blood-poisoning, poisoning from the use of drugs and narcotics, bad burns of the body, and other troubles cause destruction of these red blood corpuscles.

It takes some time to build up the red cells of the body to normal after such bodily ailments. The nourishment and welfare of every tissue of the human body demand an abundance of rich blood. It can not be rich unless the lungs are widely opened to receive plenty of fresh, clean, invigorating air, and the stomach is furnished with nourishing and digestible food. Breathe deeply. Fill your lungs with unadulterated, fresh air.

And added to this, you must have clean water to drink, clean houses to live in, clean clothing to wear, and clean bodies. The skin will not be in a healthy condition to do its work—for the blood circulates here too—if bathing is not made a regular habit. Certainly the exposed parts of the body need constant washing every day.

All these things done, your strength and ambition will return, your skin will be more colorful, your step will quicken and life will seem more worth while to you.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

ROBERT Mc. C. Q—Do you advise treatment for dandruff?

A—Yes. For particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

M. M. Q—Which is more easily digested a raw egg or a soft-boiled egg?

A—A raw egg is more easily digested.

J. H. M. Q—What do you advise for removing pimples and blackheads?

2—What will make my eyelashes longer?

A—Correct the diet, by cutting down on sugar, starches and coffee. Eat simple food. Constipation or sluggish bowel movements are usually present.

2—Try applying one per cent. oxide of mercury ointment to the lashes and brows every night.

M. K. S. Q—Part of the time my left eyelid quivers and at other times there is a ticking sound in my ear on that side; a loud noise seems to aggravate the trouble—what would you advise?

A—Nervousness would be apt to cause symptoms of this kind but it would be wise to locate a possible source of infection which may be at the source of the trouble. Have the teeth, nasal sinuses, nose and throat examined; they are all points which bear investigation. The vision should be tested to see if glasses are needed.

C. J. M. Q—Is it harmful to the digestive system to read while eating?

A—No.—Copyright, 1930, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Editorial Opinion.

A TRAVELED WORLD.

"Of course," she said, flipping the leaves of her opera program with an accustomed touch, "I don't in the least know what will become of my household. The laundress has gone to Florida for six weeks. She left this morning in her car."

The cursing laughter did not alter the unsettling facts of the case. Gone to Florida she had; therefore, a substitute must be found, and speedily. That mistress might have even to omit a matinee or two while at grips with an unfamiliar emergency. It sets one thinking—that.

And just so it is in many places. Listen—if you will—to an intermitten conversation which took place recently between women employes in a London shop. "Where are you spending your holidays this year?" "Spain," was the somewhat surprising answer. Whereupon the quick retort: "Oh, don't go there I was in Spain last summer and it was too hot. I believe this year I'll go to Tyrol. Or perhaps the Black Forest. Don't you think the Black Forest sounds cool?"

Nowadays few places are out of reach of vacationists; few too distant or too expensive for all sorts and conditions of persons to seek out and enjoy. The butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker refer in all casualness to holiday or business jaunts to spots which appeared to their stay-at-home grandparents in the guise of rosy day-dreams. The world and his wife are addicted to travel.

There are, of course, a multitude of obvious contributing causes: the record-breaking steamship, the limited train, the telegraph and cable and radio, the motorcar, the airplane. Distance practically exists no longer. Time counts for almost nothing. No barriers are tolerated today. In an age which beholds such concerted, vigorous and sincere efforts to achieve that wider consciousness which promotes world peace, it is well that people are moving here and there, up and down the world, getting acquainted with each other, learning to be sympathetic because confronted at close range by each others' hopes and fears. The world, it is said, has itself been on the move for some aeons; now its inhabitants are following an excellent example.—Christian Science Monitor.

UNWORTHY SERVANTS.

There are men in the United States senate who should not be there if the traditions of this country are to be appraised and preserved as they have been for more than a century. Certain radicals in that body not only have demonstrated their unfitness for public service by their pettifogging obstruction to the confirmation of Chief Justice Hughes, one of the clearest men, greatest lawyers and jurists in the world today, but by their revolt against the supreme court itself. These men are not big enough, broad enough, truly patriotic enough, to represent this people in the great national forum of legislation and debate.

The supreme court represents the highest function of constitutional defense. It must be protected from the attacks of political accidents and those whose functions suggest a decadence of ability and patriotism.

But the forces of reaction will not have this to be so if they can prevent it. They care nothing for the constitutional interpretations of President Madison. They want the constitution to mean what they desire it to mean, and the supreme court to be what they desire it to be. And already the constitution almost has ceased to be in the minds and hearts of the people what its framers intended it to be. It has, in fact, become the plaything of banality, passion, prejudice and bigotry.

There are representatives in the senate who would make the judicial branch of the government subordinate to the legislative branch. They are but a handful of men at present, but the tides of circumstance may send more of them to where they may have opportunity to betray the constitution and their country. They come, for the most part, from small states. They represent—if they represent anything at all—mere thousands, while they assume to speak and act for the millions of citizens who are represented by men selected by the accredited and reliable two great parties of the nation. They want the power to overrule the decisions of the supreme court, when it pleases them to do so. Give to them that power and the America of the fathers, the America of progress and unexampled achievement in the experiment of free government, the glory and liberty of the republic, will have vanished like an empty dream.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Origin of the Asteroids.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

There seems little or no reason to doubt that the mass of 1,500 or more tiny planets known as the asteroids are fragments of a once mighty planet. The theory evolved to explain what happened is the beautiful theory elaborately worked out by the Frenchman, Roche.

This is a mathematical calculation regarding the tidal break-up when two solid or liquid bodies approach each other. In Roche's work, one body is supposed to be quite small in comparison with the other. The smaller body continues to circle around the larger body, its orbit gradually decreasing in size. The larger body would continue to pull filaments out of the smaller body. This process would continue until the smaller body was entirely shattered into fragments.

According to Roche's calculations, if the two bodies were of equal density, the small body would be broken up as soon as the radius of its orbit fell to 2.45 times the radius of the larger body. If the smaller body is of lower density than the larger, the distance is correspondingly increased.

The danger line is known as Roche's limit. If a satellite circles around a certain body and remains beyond Roche's limit, it is secure against breakage. But once it comes inside that limit, it will be broken into fragments. To explain the origin of the asteroids, it is supposed that a primeval planet with an elliptical orbit of an elongated type constantly kept entering the danger-zone of Jupiter. Each time it came within or near Roche's limit, a fragment of it would be detached—until the entire planet broke up into the hundreds of tiny planets we call asteroids.

There are many interesting peculiarities connected with the asteroids. In August, 1898, Dr. G. Witt, of Berlin, detected a "trail" on a photographic plate and thus located an interesting little asteroid. The name first suggested for it was Brevitas, since it was the sole—discovery—of Witt!

Contrary to practice in naming asteroids, which are always given feminine names, this little asteroid was named Eros. This year or the next, an effort will doubtless be made, by means of Eros, to arrive at a more accurate value for the distance of the earth from the sun. There is at present an uncertainty of about 100,000 miles in this distance.

Eros, which is only about fifteen miles in diameter, describes a very eccentric orbit. It travels far beyond the orbit of Mars and also comes nearer to the earth than any object except the moon or an occasional comet. In the near future it will approach to within little more than 15,000,000 miles of the earth.

A classic problem in astrophysics is known as the problem of three bodies. Lagrange, the great French mathematician, showed that if three bodies, one being the sun, constituted an equilateral triangle, this configuration would persist. This beautiful phenomenon is supplied by the Sun, Jupiter, and a member of the Trojan group of asteroids. — Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

Most of us nurse a sneaking notion we can do something else better than the job in hand. Every financier I ever met is secretly plotting, when he can get around to it, to, of course, "to write a book." And I never saw the newspaper I couldn't edit better than the editor in charge—yet the only one I ever edited was a mighty flop. I can still hear it.

In Forty-Seventh street one evening last summer a shuffling figure stepped out of the shadows and inquired if I knew where he could find a place to sleep for the night. He was wretchedly unkempt, but there was a unprofessional embarrassment in his manner. He accompanied me to a lodging-house on Sixth avenue, where I paid for his room and gave the clerk change to send out for something to eat. The total expenditure was $1.60. How he learned my identity I do not know, but in the mail yesterday was a crypt letter which read: "Thanks for a good turn I never begged before." Pinned to the letter were two one dollar bills. And if he happens to see this I will be glad to return his forty cents over payment and direct him to a fair good job in a factory near New York.

At one time in my life I was broke, hungry and jobless in a city where I had lived but two weeks. The room key-hole had been plugged for non-payment of rent, and I was ashamed to wire or write home for aid. Twice on one of the prominent corners I circled about strangers trying to summon courage to tell them of my dilemma, but couldn't. At since I have been an easy mark for street beggars. Out of all the professionals there may be an occasional amateur.

But there's poverty to glorious wealth at a skip. In three weeks I have been notified of falling heir to two large legacies—one in England and one in South Africa. When you get on that sucker list you are considered Grade A.

The Way of the World.

Frequently people think they are sick, they complain and declare themselves completely miserable when all that ails them is idleness. If suddenly a situation developed in which they would have to work and work hard and concentrated effort they would be forced to discover that they were not sick at all. Idleness breeds misery. Idleness breeds the habit of complaint. The complaining person adds to his own wretchedness and creates misery around him. And in seven cases out of ten all he needs is some hard work.

One of man's fondest delusions is that because he has reasoning and argumentative powers superior to those of woman, he is smarter than a woman. Of course he is no smarter. A woman who might be classified as dumb is usually quicker at arriving at accurate conclusions; quicker at detecting truth and untruth than the smartest man. It is said that women have sharper instincts and less logic than men. That being the case, woman's instinct has led to the development of powerful intuitions against which man is practically helpless. It is true, of course, that woman's intuition is sometimes, even frequently, incorrect. But it is not likely to be inaccurate any oftener than man's logic is. And intuition is vastly more serviceable.

Fosdick, able preacher and authority on religion, says thoughtful and intelligent people have given up the idea of praying for the supernatural intervention of God. Natural laws can not be set aside by man and they will not be set aside by the Creator. That's bitter medicine for some to take, but life bears out what Fosdick says. It is natural for man at his best to seek to enter into communication with a power greater than himself, but he must learn some day that he can not get something for nothing by merely praying for it—no matter how long and how loud.

There is nothing we need more than to discipline the mind. We not only waste hours, but we deteriorate our whole personality by uncontrolled and unregulated thinking. We float on the waves of reverie when we might be listening, reading or thinking. We let our imagination run wild instead of directing the imagination into constructive activity.

It is not easy to discipline the mind. It is hard to discipline the body and make it go through exercises or conform to the ways of health. It is harder to control imagination. Former president of Oberlin, Henry Churchill King, used to say: "Keep yourself persistently in the presence of the best." It is not easy, but it is the way to build character and triumphant personality.

FIRST SCHOOL OPENS IN MOUNTAIN VILLAGE

Hill-Billy Youths Greet First Day With Anticipation

These children were a portion of the offspring of the six mountain families who live around the summer camp set up last season by President Hoover at the headwaters of the Rapidan high in the Blue Ridge. From 11-year-old Ray Barraker, eldest child of his nearest neighbor, the president learned that Lindbergh was a modernist and that the light of education had never penetrated the shadows of Dark Hollow. Paw Barraker was called in, the elders were organized into a school committee, the president dug into his pocket and "thar-n" became an incipient verity among the Rapidan.

Miss Christine Vest, young graduate of Berea college imported from Yosemite, Ky., to impart knowledge to the children, was waiting at the door of the little structure to greet her new charges. There wasn't much ceremony at today's opening. Later, when the roads are more passable, President and Mrs. Hoover will come up and attend a formal dedication.

Today, it was mostly a matter of enrollment and getting acquainted, although in their shy, diffident way most of the "young-uns" already had paid their respects to the "schoolmarm."

It was apparent Miss Vest's task is to be an easy one, at least so far as willingness and cooperation on the part of the class is concerned. Asked, for instance, if he liked teacher, William Barraker, the 8 year-old [illegible] Latin to the G. A. R.

SIX PERSONS HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Watchman Run Down by Car He Attempts To Flag Down at Crossing

Neidig, Patterson av., Paul Worden, Summit st., Walter Campbell, Clover st., and Wilbur Winfred, East Church st., were cut, as was Marion [illegible] a new Essex coupe belonging to Carl Worden, Summit st., and driven by his son, Paul.

The car was going about 35 miles an hour, and when the driver attempted to put on the brakes to avoid hitting a slowly moving machine ahead of the Essex, the brakes jammed. The back of the Essex was thrown around so that the machine went into the ditch on the north side of the road, heading west.

Three of the young people were in the front seat of the coupe and three were in the rumble seat.

The five who were hurt were taken to City hospital in two automobiles driven by passersby. Four of them were released last night, suffering minor bruises and shock. Alice Neidig was taken home this morning in the Hess, Markert & Axe invalid car. The Essex was demolished.

Injured in Accident at Upper Sandusky

Mrs. Russell Gunella, North Prospect st., suffered a fractured pelvis bone in an automobile collision in Upper Sandusky Saturday night. She and her husband and another couple were riding in a Studebaker car. The machine collided with a Buick sedan driven by Edgar Lincomb, of Upper Sandusky.

She was taken to the office of Dr. Carig Bowman in Upper Sandusky, where an X-ray picture revealed the fracture, and was brought to Marion in the Brinkman & Co. ambulance.

Mrs. Gunella was in the spotlight of interest in Marion on Armistice day when she and her husband were publicly married.

RHEUMATIC PAINS KEPT HER BEDRIDDEN

There was the house to clean, buttons to sew on and socks to darn, so much work to do—yet she was helpless. Rheumatic pains crippled her hands. She couldn't hold a broom or needle. Often rheumatism also settled in her legs and feet and she had to stay in bed. Nothing helped her until she rubbed good old St. Jacobs Oil on the tender spots. Relief came in one minute! This soothing, penetrating oil never disappoints and cannot burn the skin.

Swiftly it gets down under the skin and draws out pain and inflammation. That's why it is so good for rheumatic pains, aching joints, sprains, neuritis and lumbago. Get relief and forget the misery of pain. Get a small bottle of St. Jacob's Oil from your druggist. —Adv

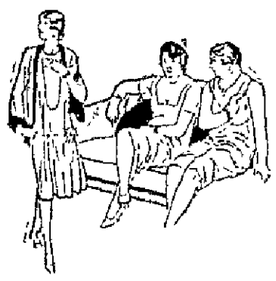
WHAT DID MADGE DO WITH HER FAT? JUST THIS:



ALL over the country, men and women are wondering at the slender figures of today. Excess fat is rare now, compared with years ago.

These people do not starve themselves of elements they need. They employ a modern, scientific method to combat the cause of fat. The cause usually lies in an under-active gland, which largely controls nutrition.

Modern physicians, in treating obesity, do not advise starvation. They feed the gland substance which is lacking. Thus the whole world has changed, in late years, as regards the over-fat.

A famous medical laboratory embodied the method in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 22 years —millions of boxes of them. They have told others about them and shown the results, in new youth and beauty, new health and vitality. Today the use of Marmola is unprecedented.

Every box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. When fat disappears, and new health and vigor come, you know why.

Try Marmola, and watch the results for a little while. If you see the fat go and new vigor come, keep on until the trouble is corrected. Then tell your friends who need it. It is folly to suffer an abnormal condition so easily corrected. Go get Marmola now.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

The Right Way to Reduce

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, head aches, a listless no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.—Adv.

[illegible]

The [illegible]ton built roadster, new fen[illegible] shine, body glistening, glass [illegible] headlights reflecting the [illegible]silver rays, raced through [illegible]village in the lazy dawn.

[illegible]lumbering trucks bearing milk [illegible]scurables, the Mercury hastened, [illegible]engine risen to a powerful, monotonous drone as gasoline shot into the cylinders.

Eight of John Andrew's new precious dollars had gone for the hotel room; four more—$4.00, since John Andrew was now being exact—for food. The Mercury's tank had been filled when it was delivered, but $2.45 had gone for oil, since John Andrew wanted a particular brand, and didn't know what was already in the crank case. He knew what he had spent, and what he had left; knew this much better than why he was heading south.

Craig would say, "I expected it," when John Andrew announced complete failure. He would say it, but would be disappointed just the same. For all that it might be considered funny, John Andrew had no intention of relating what had happened; how he'd been nicely cleaned before he'd had a real chance to attempt fulfilling the clause of the will. Off to make his fortune. . . . in a custom built roadster, paid for with the money itself!

"If I hired the Mercury out at three dollars an hour," John Andrew figured, remembering the cars with similar signs parked around Union square, "and it was used every hour in the month . . . or in the 20 days left . . . I wouldn't have anywhere near enough. Maybe I could run liquor in it up from Mexico. Maybe a rich old lady'll adopt me. Or I might go for a walk in the desert, and fall into a hole and have oil come gushing up. Or find a stiff game and hold straights and fours. Or . . .

The Mercury, John Andrew's foot pressing heavier, sped ahead. The hum of the engine began to sing to its driver: "Fool! fool! fool."

Why so south? Very logically (but having nothing to do with that question) John Andrew decided (a) that Anne was just a good sort, and (b), in a day or two he'd forget all about her, as she had him, and (c), that just because he'd fallen down in the task set before him oughtn't to make any difference, since she didn't know about it, and (d), if you really liked something nothing else should make any difference.

Thus, he saw, was getting him nowhere, but, as if he were suddenly increasingly anxious to drive the Mercury up to the place Anne was staying, he increased the speed of the car.

He stopped for gasoline, automatically considering the mileage, and then sent the custom built roadster speeding forward, over a winding highway, which swept over arroyos filled with grazing cattle; the hills were more barren, the cowns farther apart, the eastward Sierras swimming in blue haze.

"I'm going south just to let Anne see I wasn't bluffing," he said aloud, near the outskirts of a village. "I'll say, 'No Rolls I liked in San Francisco, and I'm partial to American cars anyhow, but will this do?' She'll say—she'll say—darn it, she'll probably ask me if I'm an automobile salesman! If she does, I'll be the hundred I have left that I kiss her—"

This John Andrew hailed as a noble idea; he was so engrossed with it (forgetting both a and b in his earlier figuring) that the 20-mile zone blended into the Rotary and Lions and Kiwanis and Exchange club signs just past the warning post. A noble idea. Do it placidly, and say, "I'm as swift as the car I'm selling, my dear; watch me work—"

"Hey, fella," John Andrew heard at his ear; "this ain't the Indianapolis speedway. Slow down, slow down, and get over to the curb——"

John Andrew instinctively pressed down on the foot brake and slipped the clutch; he stared at the officer as if he'd never seen a traffic cop before. "Was I going too fast" he asked mildly, "I was thinking——"

"Better'n if you'd been drinking," the officer said, straddling his motorcycle and pulling out his little book. "Where d'you get this stuff? Forty-five in a 20-mile zone? Let's see your driver's license——"

"Was I doing 45?" John Andrew asked. "License? I've got a New York one somewhere . . . isn't it good here?" He pulled out his wallet and investigated. "I've got one somewhere——"

"Yeah. They all have."

John Andrew found it, and watched the officer write industriously.

"Case comes up in five days." John Andrew was told. "$5 all on the ticket, bud."

"The road was empty," John Andrew protested; "I'm in a hurry to get south; I——"

"Folks, you don't hate to tell me you were in a hurry! You c'n plead guilty, if you want, and——"

"How much?"

"That's up to the judge, but since I didn't chase you and you stopped when I give you the sign, he'll only soak you a dollar a mile over the 20."

John Andrew did something he had never done in all his life: "Couldn't you make it 35 miles, instead of 45?"

"You won't miss the extra $10, if you can drive a boat like this Mercury."

John Andrew said miserably, "Well, you see——"

"If you was hurin' it on time, fella, it might be different, but I see from the certificate here that you paid cash. Five thousand for a job like this!"

And when John Andrew drove (under 20) out of the town, he was saying over and over to himself: "Seventy-two seventy-five." That was what he had left. Counting the two dollars which he must save to wire Craig. The engine took up the refrain, "Seventy-two-seventy-five," which, after all, was hardly less annoying than the first tune it had sung to Kellogg.

The Mercury might, when he was in Los Angeles, be an asset (when Anne sat beside him on the seat), but in some way John Andrew saw that it also was a liability. It marked its driver-owner as a man of wealth (seventy-two-seventy-five) and, in addition, it went rushing into zones where it should walk gently, as if it intended to get John Andrew into all the trouble it could for smashing its fender before.

In the open country of browning hills and long sweeps of monotonous range land, it kept trying to hurry, as if it wanted to separate John Andrew from more of the depleted capital; the sight of a patrolling traffic officer made it insist upon creeping over the allowed 40 miles on the highway; when Kellogg stopped for a sandwich and coffee, it seemed, diabolically, to want to park squarely before a hydrant.

"I gave you the best oil in the country," John Andrew accused the Mercury, when he came back to it; "from now on, if you don't behave, I'm going to fill your tummy with this cut-rate stuff I see advertised. You start getting touch then, and you'll burn out a main bearing, and they'll turn you into a tow car when you're old."

John Andrew was not given to self-pity, but it seemed as though the jade-green roadster meant to align itself with the forces which intended to lick Kellogg as thoroughly as he had asked.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Katherine Suggests that Mary Accompany Madge and Lillian on the Visit to Robert Savarin

I SHUT Lillian's door softly upon her faint grateful smile, and went in search, not of Harry and Dicky, but of Katherine. I found her in the suite of rooms where she cared for Junior, and to my pleased surprise she was lying down.

"I'm going to earn the contract stuff," she said when I answered her soft "Come in," and walked toward the couch. "I'm too dead beat to move."

"You know what I'd do to you if you tried to get up for me," I threatened. "But I want to talk to you for about five minutes undisturbed. Where are the youngsters?"

"In their grandmother's room, safe—for the next half hour at least. She has on a storytelling jag today, and the boys are profiting by it—most enthusiastically, you will be glad to know."

"I am immensely grateful to her," I said. "Now here's the situation."

As quickly as possible I told her of the picture of Marion and the letter which Robert Savarin, ill unto death, had sent to Lillian, of Harry Underwood's struggle with himself, and his announcement that Lillian must go to see the dying man, and of my determination to go with Lillian.

"It leaves you with a load—" I said contritely, "but Dicky will be here. I am sure."

"Even if he isn't, I can manage," she said with the capable sureness of herself when I have found so unfailing. "And if you say the word 'load' or any synonym therefor, I shall brain you. If the Dicky-bird stays and makes himself responsible for those two older boys, I shall have what used to be described as a 'headpipe cinch.'"

"He'll be here," I asserted stoutly.

"I'm sure of it, under the circumstances," she answered. "But tell me, where are you going to stay when you get up there, at the home of Mr. Savarin's sister?"

Take Mary!

"Oh! no," I exclaimed. "Only a few yards away a neighbor of Mrs. Gearmore's accommodates tourists all the year round. We shall stay there, so that we impose no more burdens upon Mrs. Gearmore's already loaded shoulders."

Katherine nodded. "I hoped that was what you meant to do," she commented approvingly, and explained a second later with a quick query.

"Can you take Mary with you?"

I stared at her for the fraction of a second before voicing an unqualified affirmative.

"Of course, if that will help!" I said. "But why? I thought Noel needed her."

"He does, but he needs her almost more," she retorted cryptically.

"It's that latter business," she said. "I'm sure of that. If you were going to be here, so that you could find out what it is that's eating his heart out—for that's what's happening—it would be all right to keep Mary here. But as it is now, I think seeing her is bad for him. If she goes away, he'll worry of course, but it will be a natural sort of worry, even though exaggerated a bit—he's got the fear of Jack Locke obsessing him, you know. All in all, however, I think her absence will be most salutary for him."

"And there's no question about Mary's needing to go away," I said with the memory of the girl's doleful confidence of the morning still in my ears.

Katherine nodded. "You're sure Lillian won't mind?"

Saving Mother Graham

"She is thinking of only two things just now," I said, "Robert's condition, and Harry's chivalry in bidding her to go to him. Nothing else will affect her. But—I'm starting in an hour. Shall I tell Mary?"

"Leave that to me," Katherine suggested, "while you make your peace with Mother Graham. Mary can be ready to go in twenty minutes, so I can be free for a few minutes. What are you going to tell your mother-in-law? Not the truth, I hope."

She smiled up at me wickedly.

"I'm afraid I can't," I said regretfully. "It would take too much explaining. Besides it is Lillian's affair. But I think the excuse of a Christmas shopping trip may do. She knows I have to go into the city soon, and I shall make my excuse true before I come back, if there is an opportunity for me to stop in the city. It all depends upon Robert's condition, you know."

"What did you say the doctors had told him?" she asked. I told her and she looked out into space for a second or two.

"A good nurse never distresses, and never prescribes," she quoted from her hospital discipline. "But I'll venture a prediction. Either Robert Savarin lives but a few hours after Lillian sees him, or else her coming spurs his vitality and gives him perhaps weeks of life which he otherwise would not have had. In either case——"

"We will make only a day's stay," I said. "If he goes, Lillian's errand is finished. If he lingers as you predict, she can go back after the holidays."

"Exactly," Katherine agreed. "Now what do you want me to look after while you are gone, outside the usual routine, I mean?"

I gave one or two commissions concerning the Christmas celebration, and then went to my mother-in-law's room, wondering with trepidation how she would react to my suddenly planned departure.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

YESTERDAY was Sunday, and it was cloudy and coolish but not cold when I let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth and slid into my pants and other things and went down and fixed my fires and went out and milked the dummed beasts and bounced the milk stool off the hip bone of the old cow, because she wound her tail around my neck and pulled me off the stool, which I wasn't looking for because it wasn't fly time and she didn't have anything to switch her tail for that I knew of. And then when I had wiped my hand on which I had landed on the barn floor on the cow's side and had started to milk her again, something made me look up and Pickles was pointing a stick at the cow just above my head and there was a pin in the end of it so that when it would stick the cow she would think it was a fly and would jam loose with her tail.

When I saw that I jumped up and started for Pickles but he was almost out of the door and was looking back grinning at me just as I threw what milk I had in the pail at him, and it hit him in the face and ran down on his clothes. Then I set the empty pail on the feed-box as I went past and Pickles was leaving it for all he was worth and he was going between the posts of the swing at about a mile a minute and the rope which had been thrown up over the cross-piece all winter had got blew down some so that it caught him at the stummick and when he got to the end of it it took him up in the air, and then he started back and I just had time to drop on my stummick in the mud to let him go past or he would of ruined me. I was ruined anyway but I would rather be ruined by soft mud than by a pair of hard feet in my face or anywhere. When I scrambled up he was scrambling up too and I was just going to jump on him when I heard my father yell from the kitchen door, so I streaked it back to the barn and so did Pickles. He was all mud where he had set down in the back and I was all mud in the front, and when I went in and my father began to romp on me my mother said, "Boys will be boys," and he said, "What I object to is their being pigs." So then he didn't say any more. A mother is a good thing to have around the house sometimes, but a aunt never. Mine washed me again, and the girls came and stood and watched her, so I was mad all through Sunday school and didn't look at nobody.

Today was warmish too, but it didn't rain, and there didn't anything happen at school. Sometimes I think nothing ever happens where I am. The Lost Boy of Tripe was so glad we are good friends again that he brang me an apple that had been soaked in pepper-sauce and dried, and I went home with my tongue hanging out to let the wind blow on it.
